CITY OF PARIS.

A GALA DAY AT THE CITY OF PARIS One Dollar Store, 83 South Clark-st.

I shall offer to-day, at the popular ONE DOLLAR PRICE, 1,000 LARGE, SILK, SUN UMBRELLAS, 16 and 18 inch. Also Silk-Lined Parasols, and some Ruffled, worth $3.50, at my fixed ONE DOLLAR PRICE.

500 LARGE ENAMELED WATER COOLERS, 3 and 4 gallon, and for which I am offered $2 apiece by the whole lot, but prefer to give the appreciating public the benefit at ONE DOLLAR APIECE

1,200 GENUINE FRENCH GILT TOILET SETS, each containing THREE PIECES, for ONE DOLLAR A COMPLETE SET.

2,000 PAIRS OF FRENCH FLOWER VASES, richly Gilt, Amber, and Ruby, for ONE DOLLAR A PAIR.

1,500 PICTURES, in Rosewood finished frames, large sizes, TWO for ONE DOLLAR.

A NEW STYLE OF ALBUM, AN IMPROVED ALBUM, superior and stronger than any heretofore brought to this country, containing spaces for 100 Pictures, for ONE DOLLAR.

SOLID WALNUT WRITING DESKS, lock and key, for ONE DOLLAR.

PHALON'S PERFUMERY, the best in the market. "THE GOLDEN BELL" COLOGNE, the most delicious perfume, in very great demand during the hot spell. "LOVE AMONG THE ROSES," "NIGHT BLOOMING CEREUS," of all of which I SELL DOUBLE THE QUANTITY usually obtained at other stores FOR ONE DOLLAR. Having just received 150 gross of Phalon's most fragrant Soaps and "Savons de Paris" which I will sell at prices to startle the most skeptical.

I still continue the sale of ROGERS BROS. GENUINE SOLID PLATED WARE, at ONE DOLLAR A SET for Teaspoons. This is cheaper than any house in the country wholesales these unsurpassed goods; and, to allay any doubts and silence slanderous reports, I hereby agree, over my own signature, to pay to the purchaser of said Rogers Bros.' Spoons, ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS if said Spoons are not GENUINE ROGERS BROS., WATERBURY, CONN.,—ware known better and more favorably than any other in the world. REMEMBER! REMEMBER! Common Single-Plated Teaspoons, such as are commonly sold for one dollar in other Dollar Stores, we give Two Sets for One Dollar.

GENTLEMEN'S SUMMER WEAR.

I open this morning a full assortment of the best LINEN and MARSEILLES COATS, PANTS, and VESTS, for One Dollar each. Over 1,000 SUMMER HATS, of latest styles, for One Dollar.

Having replaced my entire stock of JEWELRY, since the late fire in the City of Paris, by an entirely new and most elegant stock of LATE and FASHIONABLE STYLES of JET and REAL MOSS AGATE, I will sell bargains which will continue to make the CITY OF PARIS, 83 South Clark-st., the model as well as the largest Dollar Store, not only of Chicago, but of the whole land!!!

And, last of all, I am happy to announce to all of my customers that from this day forth, I will deliver, in the most prompt manner, everything purchased at the CITY OF PARIS DOLLAR STORE, free of charge, to any part of the city. A MOST ELEGANT CONVEYANCE, FOR THAT EXPRESS PURPOSE, having just been completed, and starts on its route through the streets THIS DAY.

E. H. STEIN, CITY OF PARIS ONE DOLLAR STORE 83 SOUTH CLARK-ST., OPPOSITE THE COURT HOUSE.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

No. 3.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14, 1870.

Matters at Ogden are getting tolerably well, and becoming systematized, so that there is less confusion on the arrival and departure of trains than formerly. Nevertheless there is still room for improvement. It seems hardly necessary to have a delay of from an hour to two hours after the arrival of the train from San Francisco before the departure of the Union Pacific Railroad train [illegible]

INTERESTING TO FRUIT CANNERS.

Vegetable Acids and Mineral Poisons.

An Eastern paper says:

Our attention has been called to this subject (poison from tin cans) by a note of inquiry from a lady in Brooklyn, Miss Julia Coleman, who has achieved considerable popularity as a temperance lecturer, and has made the subjects of food and nutrition a favorite study.

The queries she propounds are, we think, of sufficient importance to merit public attention, which, once aroused to the subject, will not rest, we presume, until a positive answer is obtained to the query which forms the heading of the present article.

[illegible]

We believe the subject thus broached by our correspondent is one of importance. If manufacturers are presuming upon popular ignorance, and palming off upon the public zinc and lead for tin in vessels intended to contain food, the fact ought to be known. Acetic acid acts slowly upon lead, but its action is hastened by exposure of metal to air. Acid fluids act with more violence upon zinc.

A WHACK AT OLD WHIGGERY.

And a Torchlight Applied Under its Wriggling Tail.

From the Toledo (O.) Torchlight, June 15.

The most rapid of all partisanship was Old Whiggery. When the party was alive it was venomous from head to tail. It struck its fangs and its sting into everything that ventured to oppose it, or even differ with it. Though, according to the logical course of human events, it ought to have been thoroughly dead about a score of years ago, yet its tail keeps wriggling here and there over the country still, with the sting in it as deadly spiteful as ever.

This tail end of Old Whiggery is found wriggling in both parties to-day, but mostly in the Republican party. Yet, whether it goes by the name of Republican or of Democrat, let the magical words pig iron, Bessemer steel, or protection to home industry be sounded, and it is tail up and sting out, ready to strike any member of either party that dares question the plenary inspiration of what Horace Greeley knows about political economy.

PERSONAL.

A young Baptist clergyman named McMullen has been arrested at Philadelphia on charges made by Mary L. Learch, of Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, of seduction and breach of promise, while he was a student at Lewisburg University. She is now the mother of an infant, whose paternity she ascribes to McMullen.

—The New York Evening Post says: [illegible]

—A letter from London of June 8 reports as follows: "The arrangements for the appeal to the House of Lords in the Mordaunt divorce case have been completed, and I understand that it is the opinion of eminent counsel who have been consulted on behalf of the petitioner that the appeal will be successful, and that the ultimate decision must be that Lady Mordaunt's alleged insanity will not prevent the progress of the suit for the dissolution of her marriage with Sir Charles Mordaunt. All previous decisions bearing on the case are opposed to the view of Lord Penzance and his colleague, and in favor of the Lord Chief Baron who differed from the majority of the court."

—A correspondent of the North British Mail prints an extract from a letter by the Rev. Dr. Mackenzie, who was for sixty-three years minister of Portpatrick, giving an account of how when Mrs. Siddons, on the 15th of June, 1785, bade adieu to Scotland, she uttered a scream in Portpatrick, and of the effects of that scream. RAILROADS.

It is proposed to build a railroad from Centralia, Ill., to Fort Scott, Kansas, via Farmington and Iron Mountain, Mo.

—The Winona (Minn.) Republican of the 20th says: "We are informed, upon high and reliable authority, that the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company will, at a very early date, build the road from Madison to Winona, or to the end of the Eastern Connection Railroad, now nearly finished for a distance of twenty-eight miles southward from this city. Surveys and estimates have already been made for the proposed route, which will complete the air line from Chicago to Winona, and hence to St. Paul, to connect with the great Northern Pacific Railroad."

—The Evansville (Ind.) Journal of the 20th says: "The protracted conference of railroad men from Illinois, with the Directors of the Evansville, Carmi & Paducah Railroad Company, came to a conclusion on Friday night. [illegible]

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

MONETARY.

FRIDAY EVENING, June 24.

The activity in the money market has now been prolonged to so much later period in the summer than usual that there will probably be no summer plethora of money, and general stagnation of business as has always heretofore been the experience at some time between the end of one crop movement and the beginning of another. [illegible]

In general, the local money market is tight. Some of the banks say they are accommodating all of their regular customers, while other banks have to turn a good many away.

THE FATE OF THE CLEVELAND CLUB.

OF COURSE NOT.

To this the Herald makes the following rejoinder: "Of course the club is not 'to be snuffed out,' but it is a mighty pale light that is being shed just now. The public will be glad to learn that the officers have taken hold of the matter in a manner that indicates business. The club can have hosts of friends and plenty of the sinews of war to sustain them, if something can be done to do away with this dreadful uncertainty that has hung over the Forest City Base Ball Club ever since it has been organized. Now that the club is paid for its services, such exhibitions as that of Monday last are only a disgrace, and the large audiences that visit the Association Grounds have a perfect right to grumble, especially when they don't get their money's worth. 'Reorganization,' 'practice,' and 'discipline,' are the things needful, and we believe the officers of the club will attend to the matter sharp."

AMOS T. AKERMAN.

Important Views of the New Attorney General on Constitutional Questions.

Washington (June 21) Despatch to the New York Times.

Any information concerning the political opinions and views of the new Attorney General will be interesting at this particular moment, and Republicans especially may be gratified to learn that his opinions on certain constitutional questions, especially on the validity, scope, and force of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States, are as far advanced and as broad, even, as those of Judge Bingham, than whom there is not in Congress a man who has a more far-reaching grasp of constitutional questions. At the last session of the Fortieth Congress, that body began to take cognizance of the condition of things in Georgia which had followed the expulsion of the colored members from the Legislature. Mr. Akerman was among the witnesses summoned to testify as to affairs in that State, and as to the correctives which should be applied. Many of the matters on which he then expressed an opinion were local in their character, and have since been superseded by a change in the nature and condition of things, but his views on other points are very interesting at this moment. After giving a history of the outrages and difficulties which attended the voting at his own town of Elberton, in the election of 1868, he referred to the insecurity of life and property in the State, through laxity in enforcing the laws, and said:

"I think, however, that some action by Congress is desirable, and that action should be founded upon the power which Congress possesses under the Fourteenth amendment of the Constitution, which forbids any State from denying to any class of its citizens the equal protection of its laws.

"By Mr. Beck: Q.—In other words, you think that carrying out the Fourteenth amendment by Congressional legislation, applicable to all the States, would be a sufficient protection to the people of Georgia? A.—I think there should be some special legislation over the people of Georgia.

"Q. Would there not be a difficulty in Congress passing under that amendment, for a particular State, legislation which did not bear upon all? A. With all due deference, I think not; the amendment provides that no State shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws, and I think when any State does deny that protection, Congress may enact a law bearing particularly upon that State; for instance, the composition of our General Assembly is supposed, and I think correctly, to stand in the way of the enactment of such laws as will do justice to all classes of people; the composition of the Legislature has been changed, in violation of what I understand to be the Constitution of Georgia; I think there is machinery, which is still potential, that Congress can put in motion and correct the defects in the composition of the State Legislature."

This was in December, 1868, before the composition of the Legislature had been corrected by action of Congress, and at a time when the representatives of Georgia were absolutely on the floor of Congress.

"By Mr. Beaman: Q. You think, then, the Reconstruction laws have not been executed in Georgia? A. I think they have been executed, but that Congress may resort to this legislation under the powers given by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

"Q. Then you think the present government of Georgia is provisional? A. No, sir, I think not; I think that question has already been adjudicated by Congress.

"Q. Do you think Congress could pass a law to remedy the defects in the result of the [illegible]

[illegible]

"Q. Do you mean to be understood that Congress has power by law to require a convention to modify the Constitution of your State? A.—It has power to reconvene the convention, in my judgment; and I will state why I believe that. [illegible]

"Q. Then it comes to this, that Congress may call a convention in any State in the Union to review and amend their constitution? A. I think so; I have no doubt of the fact that Congress possesses such power under that amendment of the constitution."

Mr. Akerman gave expression to many other ideas about the condition of affairs in Georgia at that time, which are not pertinent now, inasmuch as the status of affairs has essentially changed since that time. He is, however, an earnest advocate of the immediate admission of Georgia, and if confirmed, Congress will be apprised of that fact, in case of much further delay on the subject.

UNPARALLELED TIME

An Extraordinary River Feat—Trip of the Natchez—New Orleans to St. Louis in Three Days Twenty-one Hours and Fifty-eight Minutes.

From the St. Louis Republican, June 23.

The arrival of the Natchez, only 3 days, 21 hours and 58 minutes out from New Orleans, has revived the interest in fast river steamers. The large number of our citizens who collected on the wharf and on board the Natchez attest the fact that all interest in swift steamboats has not been lost. The event of yesterday also recalled the great run of the J. M. White, which steamer arrived from New Orleans on the 8th of May, 1844—3 days, 23 hours and 9 minutes out from New Orleans. As a matter of interest we reproduce the feelings with which this trip was viewed in the long ago as preserved in the columns of the Republican of that period. Captain Converse commanded the White on that memorable voyage. His name has passed down to history, and will be transmitted to posterity till all interest in the navigation of the great river is swallowed up in the grand forever. But another name will be recorded in the same volume—that of Captain T. P. Leathers.

From the Daily Republican, May 9, 1844.

"LESS THAN FOUR DAYS FROM NEW ORLEANS TO ST. LOUIS.

"What has heretofore been merely the speculation of enthusiasts has been realized. New Orleans has been brought within less than four days travel of St. Louis; to immediate neighborhood propinquity. The steamboat J. M. White, has been the first to accomplish this extraordinary trip. She arrived here yesterday afternoon; and for the especial benefit and information of the Ohio papers, some of which are in the habit of boasting of the performances of their favorite boats—we publish the memoranda of her voyage from St. Louis to New Orleans and back.

"The J. M. White left this port on Monday, April 29, at 3 o'clock, p. m., with 600 tons of freight, and arrived at New Orleans on Friday evening, the 3d instant, being three days and sixteen hours on her downward trip. She departed for St. Louis on Saturday, May 4, 1844, at forty minutes to 5 o'clock p. m., and arrived here on the 8th, having made the trip up in three days and twenty-three hours, and having been but nine days on the voyage out and home, including all detention:

"The following are the runs up from wharf to wharf, and is the best time ever made by any steamboat on the Western waters:

FROM NEW ORLEANS

To Natchez	300 miles		20 hrs. 40 min.
Vicksburg	410 do		[illegible]
Montgomery's	575 do	1 day,	[illegible]
Memphis	775 do	2 days,	[illegible]
Cairo	1,000 do	3 days,	[illegible]
St. Louis	1,200 do	3 days,	[illegible]

"The time made by the J. M. White for twenty-six years had remained unsurpassed by any steamboat on the Western waters. Other fast boats had made the attempt but failure was written on all their efforts. It had become a settled conviction in the minds of a great majority of our steamboatmen that her time could never be excelled. Other boats have made good runs. The steamer Alexander Scott left New Orleans on the 16th of June, 1848, at 5 o'clock p. m., with eight hundred tons of freight, the United States mail, fifty-two cabin and sixty-seven deck passengers, and came up against the current of the "great flood" of '44, lost three hours on the night of the 19th on account of fog, and was detained five hours on the trip up by reason of the difficulty of obtaining wood, and arrived at St. Louis on the 20th, four days, six hours and twenty minutes out from New Orleans. The time of the Princess, in August 1856, between New Orleans and Natchez was seventeen hours and twenty minutes—the fastest time on record. It should be taken into consideration that the Princess was stripped for running—that she was run to make time, while the Natchez was on a business trip, with her cabin full of people, and, it may be supposed, with some freight aboard. The Natchez, too, ran against the current of a rising river, which is usually not the case at the season when the Princess made her famous run.

The time of the Natchez from New Orleans to Natchez was 17 hours and 51 minutes. But it is not necessary to go into all the details of the "runs" made by the A. L. Shotwell, the Eclipse, and the Reindeer. Suffice it to say that the arrival of the steamer Natchez, Captain Thomas P. Leathers is composed of 58 minutes from New Orleans, surpasses the time of the J. M. White 1 hour and 11 minutes. At the time the White made her trip all our steamboats burned wood, and she was necessarily hindered in getting her fuel, as her landings were all made against the banks. But the Natchez also came up on a business trip. She made twenty-one landings; remained thirty minutes at the wharf at Memphis, and one hour and five minutes at Cairo. It is not necessary to enter into further details. It is evident that a feat has been accomplished unparalleled in the annals of river navigation. No man had ever made the trip in the time of the J. M. White from New Orleans to St. Louis before that memorable trip, nor for many a year after; and until the iron horse, with his breath of flame and nerves of steel, basted with lightning speed the thundering carriages of the railway train. Therefore it is that for years, nay even now, the name of Captain Converse and his fast boat, the J. M. White, are known familiarly to thousands of people, and will be handed down to generations yet in the womb of the future. Perhaps in this fast age the achievement of Captain Leathers may not awake so much immediate interest. But yet the record is made. It stands on the page of the present; it will be transcribed on the more durable volumes that shall unfold to the men of the future, what was accomplished by those who lived, acted and thought in this age. It will be many a day before such an achievement will be again accomplished.

The officers of the Natchez are: Thomas P. Leathers, Captain; Samuel Ayres, Esq., clerk; Ovid Bell, second clerk; Captain Frank Caton, Captain —— Burnham, pilots; Andrew Panley, John Farrell, engineers.

The following are the memoranda of the steamer: "Left New Orleans 32 minutes past 5 o'clock p. m., Saturday, June 18, 1870; timed from St. Mary's market; had on board 80 cabin and 45 deck passengers, and some freight; made the run to Natchez 17 hours and 51 minutes; made Yucatan for her 2¼ hours run; landed at Serrices, above Natchez; made landing at Rodney; landed at Rodney; made landing at Grand Gulf; Vicksburg, 26 hours, 54 minutes; landed and took on six hundred and ninety boxes of coal. Left Vicksburg, and made landing at Tallulah, landed at Lake Providence, landed at Greenville, made landing at Columbia, made landing at Bolivar, landed at White River, coaled three hundred and ninety-five boxes. Found bottom in Chute, and had to hail back, landed at Memphis, lost thirty minutes, landed at Henderson's point, and took six cords of wood, landed and coaled at Cairo, lost one hour and five minutes, struck bottom at Liberty Bar, landed at Grand Tower."

At thirty-four minutes past 3 o'clock, yesterday, the steamer Natchez made the old time marks of the J. M. White opposite the Arsenal grounds. Intense interest was felt by all the passengers. It was known in the city that the Natchez was coming up on fast time; and a large number of citizens, representing all classes, merchants, steamboatmen, mechanics, professional men, some even of the clerical gentlemen of the city, had collected on the wharf and watched with earnest intent the rapid progress of the boat as she ploughed her way against the swift current. By this time the passengers on board, of whom there were more than a hundred, were wrought up to the highest pitch of enthusiasm, but there was no cheer, no word spoken. Silent and unconscious of all else around them, they had gathered out on the guards and forecastle, gazing with intense eagerness toward the nearing wharf. If the passengers were thus affected, what must have been the emotions of that brave old river captain, who stood upon the roof of his own idol steamer, as the index hand on the dial of his watch pointing toward the hour which for twenty-six years had been the standard, inaccessible to all succeeding navigators of the river, as the fastest time on record. On the way from Cairo, at Liberty bar, she touched bottom, her speed was checked; thus far she had made an unexampled run. Must she now be stayed, and stick fast in the sand, and the coveted triumph be changed into an ignominious failure? There was a clear head and a steady hand at the helm. Her engines were reversed, the ponderous wheels rolled back; her bow was veered a little to the larboard, and onward, with increased speed, she dashed through the foaming river. All was yet safe. Two hours yet remained, in which to make her time and claim the palm of victory. The walls of the tall buildings of South St. Louis appeared in the distance. The Captain gazed with intense earnestness as the buildings became more and more distinct. The spires and towers and lofty walls grew nearer and nearer. Carondelet was made, only 3 days, 21 hours and 32 minutes out from New Orleans. Every one of the officers of the boat were at their post; cool, calm, collected, with victory already almost attained; yet a few miles remained. The identical point where the White signalled her arrival, a little more than twenty-six years before, lay still above. But there was more than an hour yet in which to make the distance. And now came the moment for caution—the moment in which the magnitude of the achievement was to be realized. "There is the arsenal grounds." "There is the point reached by the J. M. White." "There is the end of her voyage," and all eyes were turned toward the well-known landmark with an eager, earnest intensity that held the tongue still, and no word, or exultant cheer escaped from the lips of those enthusiastic admirers of the boat. The goal of one of the races noted of steamboat triumphs is gained. The victory was won; the quickest voyage from New Orleans to St. Louis was brought to a safe conclusion. A few more minutes and the steamer was still, resting quietly on the bosom of the river, at her wharf. The spell [illegible]

[illegible] will be in our graves, and have mouldered to indistinguishable dust, before the time is made again."

The Recently Discovered Silver Mines in New Mexico.

New York Correspondence of the Cincinnati Commercial.

The current issue of the Army and Navy Journal contains a glowing account, furnished by an army officer, of certain recently discovered silver mines in the extreme southwestern part of New Mexico, about fifteen miles from the Arizona line—claims in which (we are told) have been secured by a large number of army officers, who are very sanguine of results. These mines are at the northern end of the Pyramid Mountains, and you can tell when you are approaching them by looking out for an "immense ledge of rock, which projects like a huge stone wall, and runs clear over a hill which is 500 feet in height." "At the mines themselves," says this army officer, "you are surrounded by a group of hills, overnearly all of which are built immense irregular stone walls, varying from one to fifty feet in height, with the same irregularity in thickness." This seems to me very much like the account of the well-known Moqui Indian towns of New Mexico, which were described by Prof. Newberry twelve years ago, and have since been visited by a number of explorers. When a piece of this immense projecting ledge of rock was broken off by a party, not long since, they were surprised at what they found. Upon "assaying the quartz, the poorest specimens show a yield of $320 of silver to the ton of ore, while the richest turned out $4,000. The entire lot shows an average of $400. This immense yield astonished them," as we are not astonished to learn. The army officers also saw many ledges which appeared to be immense veins of quartz that have been forced up through the earth to the surface, and, as the surface has gradually washed away, these have been left standing. Upon breaking it open it presents a beautiful combination of colors and metal. Most of it is impregnated with copper, and galena can be seen glistening all through, while slight traces of iron can be readily distinguished, and the silver dark gray or blue spots complete the variety. The sides of the hills and ravines are a complete net-work of similar veins running in all directions, and new claims are being discovered nearly every day on the plains at the base of the hill. The area covered by these mines is about six square miles, and of course everything that shows itself above ground has been taken possession of. It is to be hoped that these mines will turn out to be as rich in silver as the account of the army officer. The region of New Mexico which he describes is sufficiently desolate and forlorn to require silver mines for its settlement.

Chinese on Southern Railroads—Fifteen Hundred for the Alabama & Chattanooga Road, in Place of Negroes.

From the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times, June 18.

John Chinaman is actually coming here, and the negro will have to retire from the construction of the Alabama & Chattanooga Railroad, having been tried and found wanting. In yesterday's Times we alluded to the possibility of such an event, but we had no idea then that Mr. Stanton would act so speedily as he has done. But yesterday morning he received the following despatch:

"SAN FRANCISCO, June 17, 1870.

"J. C. Stanton, Superintendent Alabama & Chattanooga Railroad:

"Can deliver in thirty days at Chattanooga 1,000 or 2,000 good Chinese laborers for $40 per head. Wages $18 per month and board. Free passage back. KOOPMANSCHAP & Co."

To this Mr. Stanton replied:

"CHATTANOOGA, June 17, 1870.

"Koopmanschap & Co., San Francisco, Cal.:

"We will take 1,500 able-bodied Chinese laborers at once. We refer to the First National Bank of Chattanooga. J. C. STANTON, Sup't."

The Reduction of Canal Tolls.

The Albany Argus publishes the annexed letter from Governor Seymour:

UTICA, June 14, 1870.

A. E. Culver, Esq.:

DEAR SIR: I do not know that I shall be able to meet the friends of the canal at Rochester next week. I am very glad you and all others who took part in the plan to cut down tolls must rejoice at the result. It has given hope and vigor to our business. No act in many years has done so much good, not only in this State, but also in the West, by enabling farmers to get their grain to the seaboard. Men of all parties in this State must feel a just pride in seeing New York build up the trade of our country by a bold and wise policy. We may lose a million dollars of tolls this year, but we shall gain many times that sum in other ways. Not only are those helped who live along the line of the canal, but there as well who live in the Western, Central, and Southern New York. Low tolls on the canals make low charges on railroads. The world now sees that New York means to stand by its canals, and that it will show as much pluck and vigor in carrying down charges as railroads do when they wage war upon each other. I am glad the day has come when all parties in this State agree that our public works should be in the interests of labor and commerce, and that they are not hereafter to be looked upon as works which are [illegible]. Truly, yours, &c.

HORATIO SEYMOUR.

Second Supreme Judicial District of Illinois.

Vandalia, Ill., (June 23) Correspondence of the St. Louis Republican.

The Democratic Convention met at this place to-day, to nominate a candidate for Supreme Judge. All the counties in the district, except four, were represented.

At 12 o'clock p. m. the convention was called to order by the appointment of the Hon. Silas L. Bryan, of Marion County, Chairman, and selecting C. G. Smith, of Fayette, Secretary. The name of the Hon. Arron Shaw, of Richland County, being the only one submitted for nomination, he was unanimously declared the candidate.

His opponent for Supreme Judicial honors will be Mr. Anthony Thornton, of Shelby County, who, I am informed, was placed in nomination by a bar meeting at Pana on yesterday, representing nine counties of the district.

The Origin of "Hurrah!"

The discussion in some of the German papers in regard to the origin of the cry "Hurrah!" still continues. The cry "Hurrah!" was proved by a German writer to have been received by the Germans from the peoples coming from the East at the time of the "Volkerwanderung." It was then "Harra!" subsequently changed in the wars with the Slaves, Huns, and Avars to "Wara!" A writer in the Vossian Zeitung, who has lived several years in India, gives still further explanation of the origin of these cries. He says:

"The word Harra! really Harri! was got by the old Germans in the first place from the people who wandered into Europe from Central Asia. The word Harra (Harri) is used to this day among the Hindoos of Eastern India as a designation for God, being one of the names for the god Vishnu. When the Hindoos have anything difficult to accomplish they cry Harri! Harri! This cry is very frequently used by the Hindoo boatmen, when their boat happens to get stuck on a sandbank in the Ganges; putting all their strength together, they call out Harri! Harri! exert their utmost powers until they bring it afloat. When the boatmen are towing the boat up the stream, and come to a strong current, where they wish to go quickly and securely over difficult and dangerous parts, the same cry is used. It is probable that the Hindoo soldiers use the cry Harri! in war. In short, the word Harri! is used by the Hindoo whenever he is conscious of his own weakness, and feels the necessity of divine help. The word Harri, which our forefathers got from the people emigrating from Europe to Asia, and from which the cry "hurrah" is derived, signifies "God help us" and in the mouth of a Christian soldier has the beautiful signification, "God help us, and stand by us since we have a difficult mission to accomplish, to conquer the enemy, and are in great danger of losing our lives."

The discussion has at least thrown some interesting light upon the origin of the cry, which is now used among us with a totally different significance.

Birching Young Ladies.

Under the heading of "Birch Tortures," an account was given in the Sunday Post, a few weeks since, of the style of corporal punishment in vogue in many English schools. A story is told now of a spirited girl who, in one of these schools, broke some of the regulations, the penalty of which was a whipping. She rebelled, and refused to submit to the castigation. Her parents were written to for permission to restrain her. She being an officer's daughter, word was sent that discipline must be enforced; she must resign herself to the punishment. She would not yield, and, therefore, was forcibly tied down, exposed, and flagellated. As a further penalty for mutiny, she was compelled to spend her vacation at school. She was 18 years of age, and the insult and indignity offered to her womanhood rankled. With her young cousin, a Midshipman, she concocted a plan for revenge. Seizing the opportunity when the household was abroad and the matron alone, obedient to a signal, the Midshipman was on hand, and assisted to gag and strap the matron down. Then he disappeared, and the young lady, appropriating the same instruments with which she had been tortured (leather thongs), with all her strength laid them upon the bare person of her instructor, whom she then left to regain liberty as she could, while she sought the protection of an uncle. Her relative, who was rich and powerful, while appearing to censure, really applauded her action, negotiated with her parents, and, finding her sentiments against them, was unwilling to return home, finally adopted her.

SPAIN.

MADRID, June 23.—In the Cortes, on Thursday, the Minister of State said Spain had signed the judicial treaty with France, after consulting the Council of State; and he therefore judged the permission of the Cortes was unnecessary.

Subsequently General Prim opposed the project for amnesty at present as an act of weakness. He stated that amnesty will be accorded at a more opportune moment.
